

Portfolio Commentary - 20260513

Source: `asx_eod_output\Report_CSV\Report_20260513.csv`

Generated: 2026-05-13 19:01:46 by `claude-opus-4-7`

Cost: $0.0348 USD (input 3950 tok = $0.0198; output 602 tok = $0.0150)

Headline

Portfolio closed at $1,502,376, up $32,791 on the day.

Top Movers

- BHP $61.52, +2.9%, +$28,468 — extends a strong uptrend from $53.72 ten sessions ago; consistent with trend.
- ALK $1.555, +1.6%, +$3,830 — fresh high for the window, consistent with the recent grind higher.
- AMP $1.525, +1.7%, +$1,750 — rebounds off the prior session's dip, back to range top.
- ASM $1.66, -1.8%, -$1,724 — third down day from the $1.795 peak; partial reversal of early-May rally.
- WDS $30.87, +0.4%, +$167 — small gain extends a modest recovery off the $30.05 low.

Trend Notes

- BHP has risen in 8 of 10 sessions, gaining roughly 14.5% across the window — the dominant driver of portfolio direction.
- WDS shows a clear two-leg pattern: drift down to $30.05 on 8 May, then four sessions of recovery.
- CNB has stepped up steadily from $0.46 to $0.55 across the window, breaking out of its earlier range.
- CAN and ERA are flat at micro-prices, effectively stalled.

Risks / Watch

- Heavy BHP concentration: at ~$1.01m, it represents roughly two-thirds of portfolio value — single-name risk is elevated.
- CBA (watchlist, 0 units) fell 10.4% to $153.67, a sharp break from a $171–179 range; notable even though no P&L impact.
- WBC (watchlist, 0 units) has declined for four straight sessions from $39.34 to $35.57, worth monitoring.